Using a clear bottle rather than a sealed beer bottle allows you to determine whether a beer has been tampered with prior to consumption. Marketing hype aside, there are major health benefits to drinking beer. While we like a good cold one once in a while, it's really not all that great for your health if you drink beer on a regular basis. However, the benefits are several. A lot of beers are relatively low in calories, but beers high in alcohol content will turn your brain into mush, so use caution when you are inebriated. Beer contains a wide variety of vitamins, minerals and chemicals. Most importantly it contains the antioxidant EGCG. According to the American Cancer

Society, there is no significant evidence suggesting that beer leads to cancer, so it could be your last drink to worry about. Drinking one beer a day has been shown to help reduce the risk of getting colon cancer by 60 percent. It has also been shown to reduce your risk of heart disease by 50 percent. More recently, research has shown that drinking just four beers a week actually increases your chances of being able to fight off and cure the common cold. It is thought that the germs in beer help the body to develop a natural defense to fight off infections, and drinking beer may help your body to become more resistant to the viruses that cause the cold. Beer contains three of the four main B vitamins that we need. Research suggests that drinking three small beers a week can help to lower cholesterol by 3 percent. Beer contains Vitamin D Vitamin D is important for the body to absorb calcium, help to maintain healthy bones and teeth, and it helps to maintain healthy muscles and the nerves of the brain. Eating only one egg a week has been shown to decrease the risk of getting prostate cancer by 39 percent. Beer contains protein Many people underestimate the amount of protein that beer contains. A 125ml glass of lager contains about 5.7 grams of protein and a 330ml bottle contains about 10 grams of protein. Beer contains carbohydrates Beer contains approximately 2.5 grams of carbohydrates per serving. That's roughly three carb-filled Doritos™ chips.

In the first book/film, however, I like Dumbledore. Captain SmiterOctober 22, 2009 at 7:37 AM I was never much of a Harry Potter fan in the beginning, mainly because the books weren't as easy to understand as they are now, because Dumbledore and Snape had me going crazy for sure, but I still like to discuss with other Harry Potter fans. I'd have to say my #1 favorite is Hermione Granger, I mean it's a funny thing cause I've been reading her for so long it feels like she's my best friend. :p Oh yeah and my second favorite is Hermione. bdizzle000October 30, 2009 at 1:36 AM It all depends on how old you are.
