Fraud Squad Crack Down on Southerners Scammed By Inflated Prices SOUTH CAROLINA – This year will be the first time since the late 1980s the State of South Carolina has collected taxes on gasoline due to the low level of the price of crude oil. However, it won't be the last. Federal legislation means the state will get the same amount of tax revenue in the future, but don't assume it will always be this low. It will not be $1.06 per gallon. When you pay for gas, the prices may look low, but the cost of the crude oil you are purchasing has been artificially lowered to keep the price of gasoline below the one you pay on the roadways. This should serve as a cautionary tale, not just for the state of South Carolina but for the nation, as gasoline prices are the most expensive they have been since 2008. The cost of oil remains low largely because demand for oil exceeds supply. The world price of oil is driven by speculation on world oil markets. Speculation on such markets is typically up until the end of a quarter and speculation on the release of the oil inventory report in the first week of the following quarter. Then the prices come tumbling down. In order to keep the price of oil below the one paid on the roadways, the oil companies artificially inflate prices by manipulating supply. This is done by artificially driving up the production of oil by increasing the rig count or by reducing the amount of oil stored in an oil tank. The reason this is done is so that when a consumer wants to fill their tank, the cost is higher as they are paying for product that is higher in cost. The higher cost has caused speculators to take a risk on "contracts" that increase the price at a future date. Should the cost go up by the amount projected by the speculators, the contracts will be "put to" or "rolled over" and will pay off. This can be quite lucrative for the speculator who knows the market. The problem with the system is that should the price of a barrel of oil drop by as much as it has this year, speculators who have taken on the risk of "putting to" the contract will "roll over" the
